Mukhyamantri Konya Bibhaha Yojana

(Chief Minister Girls Marriage Scheme)

1. Introduction:

Marriage is a significant event in an individual's life and a matter of social and financial importance for families. In many cases, the financial burden associated with marriage leads to distress among Antyodaya (poorest of the poor) families, sometimes pushing them into debt or forcing them to resort to early or unregistered marriages. To address these challenges and promote social equity, the Social Welfare & Social Education Department Government of Tripura proposes the Mukhyamantri Konya Bibhaha Yojana(MKBY) — a welfare scheme designed to extend financial assistance for the marriage of girls belonging to Antyodaya families. Despite various welfare measures, the cost of marriage remains a key concern for poor families. This often results in: (a) Postponement of marriage beyond a socially acceptable age. (b) Engagement in financially exploitative practices such as dowry (c) Incidences of child marriage due to economic pressure. By institutionalizing support at the Sub-Division level, this scheme will reduce such burdens, promote dignity for the girl child, and encourage lawful, timely, and socially accepted marriage practices.
